

THE BARRE DAILY TIMES

THURSDAY, MAY 18, 1911.

Published every week-day afternoon.
 Subscriptions: One year, $3.00; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.
 Entered at the post office at Barre as second-class matter.

Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending last Saturday was copies, the largest circulation of any daily paper in Vermont outside of Burlington.

5,700

The little colleges turn out the most college presidents.

Shall we continue to pave North Main street with good intentions?

Ohio has sent some good men to Vermont, and is about to send another.

Senator Lorimer couldn't find a better example than President Diaz, who has decided to come down.

President Taft is losing some of that smoothness of manner in treating men and things. The way he thwacked the "small-headed men" in certain Washington clubs is a real joy, showing that the president is getting down to brass tacks.

Parlor cars on the Montpelier & Wells River railroad summer means, probably, that the B. & M. officials do not take kindly to the bumping which the curves subject the passengers to. Anyway, it will be a welcome change to the patrons of the road.

Dillingham and Paine are of one mind about reciprocity, as we note by the Congressional Record's account of the Senate debate. Whatever the belief about the correctness of their position, one must compliment them for coming out in the open and taking a stand on the matter rather than being ciphers in the discussion.

The preparations being made for rapid filling of the old riverbed back of Main street are being watched with interest, almost apprehension, for warm weather will turn the place into a stenchhole and breeder of disease because it has been made a dumping-ground ever since the river was turned. The sooner it is buried, the better for the health of the community.

Following the quasi-official announcement that A. M. Fletcher of Cavendish will be a candidate for governor of Vermont comes the statement by the St. Johnsbury Caledonian that it wouldn't be surprised if Lieut.-Gov. Slack of St. Johnsbury bailiwick should become a candidate also. A year and more to the convention, and two half-announced candidates already!

A safe guess is that Maine contributes to the national ash-heap all out of proportion to its wealth. Portland, for instance, lost its $100,000 high school building yesterday and was spared a far worse loss by the favorable atmospheric conditions. Coming so soon after Bangor's experience with a $3,000,000 fire, Portland was naturally alarmed greatly over the possibility. Besides these fires, the smaller places of the state are constantly reporting losses somewhat smaller than Portland's yesterday.

It has been a long time since insanity was brought up as the defense in a Vermont murder trial; yet it is a very effective line to follow. The placing of Arthur Bean, the Essex county youth charged with double murder, in the state hospital for insane, indicates that insanity may be the defense in his case, with the consequent chance for disagreement of experts and a long drawn out trial. Nevertheless, the decision to place the youth under observation is proper and timely.

THE NEW PRESIDENT OF THE UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT.

In the selection of President Guy Potter Benton of Miami university to be president of the university of Vermont, as successor to the late Matthew H. Buckham, the trustees of the institution have chosen wisely, as it appears at the present time, and in good season. The new executive head comes to Vermont with a wealth of experience in educational life, as well as training in administrative work. That experience is comprehensive in that it is not confined to merely the cloistered life of the university, but was started in practical work in Kansas public schools, transferred then to the larger field of the state department of education in Kansas and finally placing Dr. Benton as president of Upper Iowa university and again as president of Miami university in Ohio, one of the oldest of the western institutions. Thus, Dr. Benton has been enabled to get a firm grasp of the educational system from the A. B. C.'s even to the post-graduate departments. That should give him a sympathetic association with the field of education in general and enable him to keep his university in close touch with the secondary and the public schools of the state. He should be able to vitalize the work of the university of Vermont in its relations to the people of the whole state rather than to permit a wall to be built about the institution. One great need in Vermont is that the state university, without lowering its standards in any way, get down to the people. This the coming president should be able to do; and his training would seem to indicate that likelihood. In the field of administration, the cessive elections of Dr. Benton as head of various state educational, and allied, associations in Kansas and Ohio give evidence of the confidence felt in his executive abilities. As an educator, too, he has taken a high rank throughout the country. Thus it seems that Dr. Benton will bring to the office of president of the university of Vermont just those qualities which are most desired. On its part, the university offers much for the incoming executive. It is not a large institution, as colleges and universities are rated now, but it has had an honored career for more than a century, striving to live up faithfully to the ideals of a higher institution of learning. During recent years it has been laying the foundation for expansion, and it only lacks energetic leadership to give it a large measure of progress. The university has a fine set of buildings, and it is now fairly well equipped with endowment, thanks to the late President Buckham and his co-workers. The opportunity is ripe for the right man. It is expected that Dr. Benton is that man.
